PRINT WORKS SNAPPERS

We have some news this week from some of our service men. Captain Jimmie Campbell is now learning how to fly a B-17, which is a Flying Fortress to you. He is located at Hendricks Field, Florida, and his mother, Jim's wife, is visiting down that way and in Texas. Jim's new granddaughter is in Canyon, Texas. . . . Mr. Barnes, who has been nursing a cold, has sent us some letters from some of the service men. Pfc. Richard H. McCandless, % San Francisco Postmaster, is located in the South Pacific, and from his point of view, this war is not going to be over soon, but he still hopes to be with us next Christmas, and that is something for him to look forward to and something for us to look forward to also. . . . The big subject now is income tax. So many of us have taxes to file, that a tax service has been set up at the Y.M.C.A. buildings here. For $2.00 you can get expert advice and your tax form filled out completely. It is necessary to get these taxes paid up and out of the way by March 15th. We advise our readers to get this attended to right away, and some of them may find they are entitled to refunds and the Government owes them money, instead of them owing additional money to the Government. . . . We have other obligations besides getting the taxes paid up and out of the way, which if No. 1. Obligation No. 2 is to buy War Bonds. Just as soon as you find out how you stand on your income tax, you will be able to figure out if you can buy more War Bonds, either outright or by putting aside something each week. The Government is particularly interested in selling the small bonds. The big buyers are coming through in a big way, and don't need any special sales talk. The small buyers, especially in North Carolina, have not made such a good record. Obligation No. 3 is to certain charities and particularly the American Red Cross. The Red Cross drive is coming off pretty soon now. . . . Many of you will remember Mr. F. A. Whitney, who was at the Print Works for several years before going to Haw River to start up and operate the Granite Finishing Works. Mr. Whitney set a production record last week by becoming a grandfather 3 times in 2 days. Both of the fathers, his son and son-in-law, are in the armed service. . . . We are sorry to say that Inspector Frank Patykula is leaving us, and we want to welcome Inspector Roy Jones.

So It Means What?

Congress appreciates a chuckle these grim days—as who doesn't? A committee which came across what it termed a "typical example of OPA legalistic language" is passing it around and getting snickers from everybody but bureaucrats. Taken from Amendment No. 5 to Maximum Price Regulation 319, the passage reads verbatim:

"All commodities listed in Appendix A are those known to the trade as such excepting therefrom such thereof, if any, while subject to another regulation." Which makes it almost as clear as some of the instruction on the new income tax forms.

Mary Anderson Says Labor Will Buy Bonds

By Mary Anderson
Director Women's Bureau of U. S. Department of Labor

War is more than victory one day and setbacks another, a Bond Drive this month and throw away your money the next. It is a continuing struggle against the enemy in the field and those economic and social forces at home that would destroy us.

It is sacrifice and work and blood every minute of every hour. This Bond Drive is a part of that unrelenting battle. American labor will see it through.

For these reasons I am convinced that the men and women in our factories, shipyards, mills and fields will buy War Bonds to the limit of their ability. I believe they will take every dollar above the cost of living essentials and put them in Bonds.

They will give up any extra recreation they might have and use that money for Bonds. I believe they will make an extra effort to buy an extra Bond during this drive—just as they have worked extra hours and accepted extra duties beyond those they thought they could reasonably bear.

The 53 million workers of this nation have sent their sons and brothers into the front lines and have dedicated themselves to unremitting toil until the war is won. Now, in the fourth War Loan Drive, labor will again prove its deep faith in our cause—by purchasing more than its share of Bonds.

The 4th War Loan shield is your seal of faith. Display it in your home. Let everyone know that you have bought extra War Bonds.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Russell and family who have been living with Mrs. C. N. Shaw on Homeland avenue have moved to Asheboro street.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Noah and daughter, Susan, came down last week for a visit with Mrs. C. F. Noah. Mr. Noah returned to Newport News on Monday but Mrs. Noah and Susan will spend the week.

Miss Virginia Collins of Kannapolis, spent the week end with Mrs. C. N. Collins and family on Arkwright avenue.

Sgt. and Mrs. William Gester spent the week end with Mrs. C. F. Noah and family. Sgt. Gester is stationed at Seymour Johnson near Goldsboro and Mrs. Gester lives in High Point.

Mrs. Noah also had as guests Miss Carolyn Wilson of High Point and Corp. Pearson of Washington, D. C.

Children Set $250,000 Goal For Fourth War Loan

Uncle Sam's children are prepared to account for $250,000,000 in War Stamps and Bonds during the 4th War Loan Drive, according to estimates based on preceding sales reports.

Although schools had just opened in September, more than a million personal bond-selling solicitations were made by school children during the last drive. School sales of E Bonds exceeded $100,000,000 during September.

The Fourth War Loan will find thirty million students and a million teachers enrolled in a tremendous drive to take War Savings information and securities to the community.

Since these boys and girls represent about half of the families in the country, their contribution can be a tremendous one.

The Rufus King High School in Milwaukee is indexing its students according to ward, precinct, and block for a house-to-house canvass for the sale of Bonds and Stamps through the school.

In Michigan all of the schools will undertake a state-wide study of War Savings as a curb to inflation in the weeks immediately preceding the Drive, according to plans announced by State Superintendent of Schools Eugene B. Elliott.

The current trend to greater school leadership in the big War Bond drives was begun last year by the schools themselves. Within their own groups, direct school sales were well over $300 million in War Bonds. Indirect results in increasing buying on the part of the community were incalculable.

Perhaps that very fact encouraged schools to organize for War Savings sales to the community.

In Texas, 854 school concerts were presented to a combined audience of 359,070 with total Bond admissions of over 14½ millions.

The schools of Wheat Ridge, a suburb of Denver, assumed full responsibility for the community's $10,000 quota. The school drive resulted in sales of $80,000.

In Detroit 5,000 pupils and teachers are enrolled as volunteer salesmen of E Bonds, and have made total sales of over six and a half millions.

In Oakland, California, 68,000 pupils sold over 40,000 Bonds. At the same time two-thirds of the War Bond quota for Hayti, Missouri, was filled by the school sales.

In every instance the schools have gone over the top when it came to War Savings goals and achievements. During the Spring Jeep Campaign for schools a quota of 10,000 jeeps was set for the nation. The schools replied with 40,000 jeeps, or $36 million in War Bonds and Stamps.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Whit and daughter, Janice, 1101 16th street, spent several days this week with their son, Pvt. Clatus Whit, Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga.

Sgt. Rockford Hill, stationed in California, and Staff Sgt. Robert Herin at present at New River, were here for the funeral of their mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Strong Southern, on Sunday. Sgt. Hill will be here for seven more days.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgebert McBride of Aberdeen, have returned to their home after visiting their sister, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Hobbs, Cypress street. They also visited their daughter, who is a student at Woman's college.

Mrs. Ruth Burns Robinson is a patient at St. Leo's hospital, where she had an appendectomy on Monday. Mrs. Albert Ellington returned to her home Wednesday, on 18th street, after being a patient at St. Leo's hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Flintom spent the week end in Cater and Greenville, S. C., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Jo Ward and Mrs. Flintom's uncle, Mr. Leslie Clapp.

Charles Thomas Culbreth, S. C. of Washington, D. C., spent the week end with his parents on Maple street. Pvt. Worth Tucker is visiting his wife and family, while on furlough from his station in Texas.

Rollin Clapp, S. C. and Mr. Sherrill of New York, who is also in the Navy, are spending several days with Rollin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Clapp.

Wade Boyce Hancock, seaman first class, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hancock, 2217 Spruce street has returned to his post of duty. During the past two years he has been to the British Isles and the Mediterranean Sea.

Leader Of Women's Bond Selling Forces Stresses The ALL In War Loan Slogan 'Let's All Back The Attack'

Commenting on the Bond selling achievements of women volunteers in War Loan Drives, Miss Harriet Elliott, Associate Field Director, War Finance Division, said today, "Women have come of age in this war. Their talents and energies have been called into play in every field of war activity, and they have met the test."

"The Fourth War Loan slogan itself," states the spirited leader of the nation's Bond selling women, "sets the keynote of the ones which came before it."

"This time its message is not only the stirring 'Back the Attack' of the Third War Loan. This slogan blazes a call to arms for every American: 'Let's all Back the Attack'."

Miss Elliott stressed the word "all" strongly and continued to emphasize the importance of each individual as an essential cog in the great wheel of national devotion to the war cause, which must be kept rolling toward peace and victory.

"The ideal fighting unit is one in which every man fights every minute as if ultimate victory or defeat rested upon him alone. Civilians should feel this same responsibility. Every act—every dollar counts."

"Whether we think of our Bond purchases in terms of bombs or bullets of military or medical equipment for our men; of armor plate or airplanes or ships or planes—they will pay at least a part of the terrible price of victory. They will also combat the home-front enemy, inflation, and strike one more blow at that pocket-book pest, the Squander Bug."

"Our individual purchases may seem small in comparison to the gigantic War Loan total of 1 billion. But for a fraction of a second of time, it will have borne the costs of conflict. The philosophy which leads one to say, 'It can't possibly matter what I do' is defeatist thinking."

"We will need a veritable army of women to carry the message to every American everywhere. To ask the worker, and the farmer and the farmer and the housewife; the old, the young, and the middle aged to buy Bonds to the point of sacrifice. To say to them effectively, 'Let's all Back the Attack'."

500 War Bonds Sold In 45 Minutes To Pupils At School In Milwaukee

Bay View High School, A Qualified Sub-Issuing Agent

Five hundred War Bonds in 45 minutes! That is the War Bond record of the Bay View High School, Milwaukee, a qualified sub-issuing agent for the sale of War Savings Bonds.

The school expects to top this figure during the Fourth War Loan Drive.

"We sell War Bonds right here in school," said Bernard C. Korn, Bay View principal. "Our advanced typing students make out the bonds just as a bank clerk would do. If a school doesn't issue its own Bonds, it is missing one of the greatest educational opportunities we have ever had."

Tuesday is War Savings day at Bay View. They used to call it Stamp Day, but now War Bonds are playing too prominent a part in student saving to permit that name.

Bond application blanks are always available at the school business office. During a 45 minute period on Tuesday four Bond teams of pupils and teachers receive the application with the money or stamps.

Applications are checked, totals computed, and money counted by bookkeeping students under the direction of the Commercial Department.

Top ranking typists from the advanced business classes type out the Bonds which are delivered to the students the same day.

Bond serial numbers, sales figures, and registration data are compiled in triplicate for the Savings and Loan Association of which the school bank is the sub-issuing agent. Pupils and teachers point out with pride that in issuing Bonds they are doing a professional job in a professional way.

"Every one of our 1,850 students has bought at least one War Stamp every week since school opened in September," said Mr. Korn. "They handle the advertising and sales themselves. Because they have the Bonds made out by their own classmates, they know it is their program. They recognize this as their part in the war effort."

As Long As They Are Able

Although we are not committed to a nation wide draft, as we feel that might lead to the type of governmental control which is antagonistic to our thoughts and ideas we are indeed sympathetic to the appeals made by the military leaders.

We, too, feel that there is a lack of appreciation of the true importance of work at home in the winning of the war. We feel that it is true that there is just as much reason why the American citizens at home should stick to their jobs in making supplies and equipment for the fighting men as there is for fighting men to stick to their jobs in wearing and using the supplies and equipment in combatting the enemy.

This war cannot be won with excuses either at the front or at home. We must all realize that our soldiers, sailors and marines do not fight only when things go to their liking. They fight so long as they are able to fight. We on the home jobs should do likewise. We should fight this war by attending to our work so long as we are able to do so.

Old Homemade Remedies

As we review the outstanding strides of medical science and are gratified at the accomplishments, our thoughts turn back to the old homemade remedies of many years ago, particularly in the South.

At first we might have a tendency to laugh at some of the remedies our grandmothers applied, but after thinking the matter through we arrive at the conclusion that maybe they really had something.

Several of the new drugs and preparations which are working miracles on the battlefield and at home are made from molds, and we understand one preparation comes from mud itself. Some of the crude old homemade remedies which were applied no doubt had the same type of curing, healing and germ destroying properties as some of the new preparations. In fact, we are convinced that the main difference between at least some of the new wonderful drugs and some of the homemade crude preparations is a matter of refinement, purification and condensation.

It appears that at least some of the new preparations were discovered by chance and that the discoveries were made while actually trying to develop something else or make some other discovery.

It might pay those in the medical sciences who are interested in further development to analyze other old homemade remedies and they might discover fundamentals which could be used in developing other wonderful new drugs.

We do not want to appear to endorse a reviving of the use of those old home prepared remedies, but we do believe that a study of them might be revealing and helpful in promoting further advances in the field of medicine.

Bonds Should Be Kept Say Security Leader

By Emil Schram, President
New York Stock Exchange

The bonds of the United States of America are the best investments in the world today. They represent both national and personal security. We will have a special opportunity to add to our holding of these bonds now during the Fourth War Loan, for the purpose of pressing on in Europe and Asia to complete victory—a victory which will mean all the difference between a mean, harried life for America and a triumphant return to freedom and opportunity, to a further cultivation of the arts of peace.

The buying of War Bonds under the stimulus and fervor of a campaign to support our men in the armed services is only part of the privilege of Americans. Bonds bought should be retained against any impulse to turn them back into cash, except to meet the most serious personal needs.

Bonds bought now and kept will provide dependable income as well as complete safety; the Series E bond will store up capital for us—store it up the

Bishop Spellman, Bishop Tucker and Rabbi Heller Indorse 4th War Loan

Leaders of the three great faiths in the United States are unanimous in their support for the Fourth War Loan Campaign in progress now until February 15.

They include the Right Reverend Henry St. George Tucker, Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, and president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America; the Most Reverend Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York, who recently returned to this country after an interview with His Holiness Pope Pius XII and a visit to the Mediterranean battlefields, and Rabbi James G. Heller, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Their statements follow:

more rapidly the longer we keep them. As the Federal Reserve Board has recently emphasized, these E bonds provide a rate of return of 4 per cent annum during the last five years of their life as compared with an average of 2.9 per cent over the whole term of the bonds.

Whatever type of bonds we buy, it is both prudent and patriotic to keep them. They are the best possible safeguard against the uncertainties of the long future.

A checking account is businesslike. You write a check for the exact amount to be paid. The bank acts as your financial secretary for it credits and debits all the deposits to your account and renders you a statement at periodic intervals. With this statement it hands you all the cancelled checks which are then your receipts. If you write many checks per month, you should use a regular checking account—if a limited number, the most economical is our ThriftiCheck plan, about which you may wish to inquire at the Bank of Greensboro.

"We have done much but we must do more to support the war effort through the purchase of war bonds."

"This is one way in which every American—from the youngest to the oldest—can share."

"In purchasing war bonds, we remember they will help preserve our homes and our churches—all those institutions which go to make America what it is."

"Every American should consider it a privilege to share more of his material substance by purchasing bonds in the Fourth War Loan."

Archbishop Spellman: "Many have tried to build peace and good will on foundations of science, trade and monopolies or balances of power. Whatever may be said of these attempts, I believe that some additional or different things are necessary before we can gain the Victory beyond the victory. I believe that peace will be found and will be founded on the mutual recognition of the rights and dignity of men and nations; and I think that the purposes and program of the Fourth War Loan campaign are an expression of that belief and a decided help towards its realization and to it I give my full adherence. I believe that this Fourth War Loan Campaign in its aims and opportunities greatly contributes to the American

Rabbi Heller:

"No true American will regard a liberal subscription to the Fourth War Loan as a sacrifice. Instead it is a glorious opportunity to participate in the magnificent fight our country and its allies are putting up for victory over one of the most iniquitous juntas that history has produced. Since we cannot throw our bodies against these enemies, let us at least support them with all of our faith, and with our worldly goods. It is a religious duty to do this, and to help save the world for justice and brotherhood."

Preserving Our Ideals . . .

Americans take pride in their funeral services. They are quiet, reverent and unpretentious.

Now that our country is struggling for survival these ideals have become priceless.

doing their part. We on the home front will not be doing our part unless we invest far more in War Savings Bonds during the Fourth War Loan Drive than we have done in any of the drives so far.

Our people, as a whole, have the money. Even after paying increased taxes, the public as a whole has 50 per cent more income now than in 1941. Individuals and partnerships have over 50 billion dollars in bank accounts—well over 15 billions more in coin and paper money. All this in addition to the dollars owned by corporations.

These dollars—every one not absolutely essential for living—should be put to work to help win this war. We, the people, have a clear choice before us. We can pay for the winning of this war in the least painful way or the most painful way. We can't escape making a choice. We can do it the hard way by going in for an orgy of spending, bidding up prices in an ever-rising spiral, forcing the Government to borrow from the banking system. That is a process whereby more and more money—dangerous dollars—would be created. It means not using fully or effectively in the war effort the already vastly expanded existing money supply. That is the highroad to reckless inflation.

If we travel that road, we will shatter the hopes and dreams of millions of the men and women in our fighting forces. They are making their plans even now for their return to civilian life. The majority are saving their money thinking of what it will buy, a house, a farm, furniture, and other things of necessity foregone while the war is on. If these high hopes are wrecked because prices have been allowed to rise until the carefully-saved dollars will buy only a half or a third, or less of what they would purchase when our fighting forces went away—if we at home allow this to happen, then let us beware.

Penicillin in the Kitchen

Penicillin, the new "wonder mold" that has effected miraculous cures of infections, has been available in such small quantities that its use has been confined to the armed services and to experimental civilian practice.

However, it may soon be available on a larger scale, if the experiment reported by a leading industrial physician recently is followed up by physicians everywhere.

Dr. Julius A. Vogel, medical director of a steel corporation employing some 10,000 workers in Pittsburgh, in November of last year told a manpower conservation conference that following the reports of Dr. G. H. Robinson and Dr. J. E. Wallach of Pittsburgh, he obtained a culture of penicillin from a local hospital laboratory, inoculated a few covered glass dishes with it, and successfully grew the precious penicillin mold in his own kitchen for a production cost of only five cents a dishful.

Dr. Vogel cited as "incredible" results of penicillin's use in the treat-

That G. I. Guy of Yours

By Betty Smith
Author of, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"

Hear from him much? Everyday? Wonderful! That silver that you're buying piece by piece is going to help to make a mighty fine home for him someday. I know you can hardly wait. But you can hurry up that day, you know. That's right. By buying more War Bonds.

I know you've bought up to the limit already. But come on. Buy another War Bond. Get him home quicker. Where's the extra money coming from? Put off buying some of that silver. The dealer will say, "bless you" and assure you that the same pattern will be in stock and waiting. You can buy more of it with the interest that bond is earning. You've got the idea. You two can buy it together.

What does he say about the photo you sent him? He thinks it's pretty. You had your hair done at the beauty salon for that picture—a two-fifty job. Oh, you have it done every week? If you did your hair yourself at home, you could save a little money for that extra bond, couldn't you now? The beauty operator won't mind. Most of the time she's too busy to take you anyway. And you know as well as I do that you can get some of that money for that extra bond by doing a lot of your own laundering and buying a bottle of spot remover and keeping your clothes pressed yourself. The laundry and the dry cleaner will say, "thank you". They're mighty busy these days and with the shortage of help...

Never mind dropping in for that fudge sundae at three o'clock. Put that quarter towards that extra bond and your finger will like it too.

Mighty cute apartment you have here. Must be fun to take care of. No? Who, then? Oh, a cleaning woman twice a week. Aw, come on. You can keep this apartment clean yourself. What's an hour in an evening? You're not going out on dates. You're waiting around for the G. I. fellow to come marching home. Don't you worry about the cleaning woman. They need her in a defense plant. And that two or three dollars you save will help buy that bond.

I must run along now—got a birthday present to buy. What? Say that again. So you've got a suggestion now for me. Thank you. I'll do that very thing. I'll pay just half what I intend to pay for that present, and, yes, I'll write on the card, "half of your present money went for part of a bond." No, my mother won't mind. You see, I've got a G. I. brother that Mohr would like to see again pretty soon. Goodbye, now.

War Bonds will preserve and protect the American Way.

4th War Loan Presents New Challenge To Women To Lead Way In Self-Denial

"First requisite for a successful Bond seller is to believe firmly that a War Bond is today's best buy," says Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury. "To convince others of the worth of what we are selling, we must first convince ourselves."

Expressing her firm faith in the women of America, Mrs. Morgenthau made a strong appeal to the nation's volunteer Bond selling forces.

"This is a challenge to the vast army of women volunteers who have worked faithfully and effectively in past campaigns. Their hand-to-hand and door-to-door selling has been an enormous factor in the success of the Treasury's War Bond Program. It is their contact with the individual Bond buyer which has done much to divert the dangerous dollars of excess national income and spending power into the reservoir of saving power."

"In the Fourth War Loan they must carry the War Bond message to more homes and families than ever, so that the slogan of the drive 'Let's All Back the Attack' may come to be a fact as well as a call to duty. It is here that the example they set will play a large part."

"It is not easy to educate people to 'do without' when they have money in hand to spend. But there is every hope that they are learning that the siren voice of the Squander Bug is as dangerous to the nation's bulwarks against inflation as in the voice of the enemy saboteur to the security of military movements. No thinking person will continue to imperil future security for the sake of present fripperies."

Mrs. Morgenthau went on to say that the leaders among women could do much to bring an end to the wave of non-essential spending which had characterized the past Christmas season in many places. More and more women, she feels, are beginning to realize the folly of "spending as usual" in war time, and the January drive will encourage them to start the New Year in a spirit of Spartan self-denial.

"The Treasury is not only deeply appreciative of the work done by women volunteers in the War Finance Program. It is also proud of the women who have dedicated themselves to this financial phase of the war. These women, we know, have the true essentials of leadership. They will not only bend every effort to sell Bonds."

All-Round Cotton Fashions Come Out Of The West

East is East and West is West, but the twain have met when it comes to adopting cotton for sportswear and all other types of apparel for men, women and children. Coast designers, imbued with the casual, outdoor life encouraged by balmy weather, have transformed everyday clothes into such irresistible raiment that Easterners wear it as enthusiastically as Californians.

Fashions from the Coast are designed for typical American youngsters and their parents. Because Californians insist on wearing garments most comfortable and practical for their casual, easy-going lives, their designers create the most original and wearable play-clothes in the country. That's the conclusion of the fashion director of the Cotton-Textile Institute and National Cotton Council after a close-up study of Californians in their native haunts.

Climate and scenery have had much to do with the emergence of the brilliant and colorful casual styles that come out of the Southwest. The balmy climate makes people from the Coast natural cotton lovers, and the majestic and bright-hued scenery with its mammoth trees, mountain ranges, tropical fruits and flowers, and desert sands is responsible for the vibrant colors and gorgeous designs one finds in their fabrics. The use of black cotton this season, as well as Mexican and Guatemalan motifs, shows how proximity to our Southern neighbors is reflected in their fashions.

Some of the most prominent California designers are devoting most of their time and energy to war work. Fred Cole, for instance, has switched from bathing suits to parachutes, but is still making a few exciting suits with a skeleton force. Muriel King, W. R. Darling and Ethel have made important contributions to women's work clothes.

The Latin-American influence is strong in California. One of those designers who show it strongly is Louella Ballerino, with the result that her collection contains black cottons of Mexican inspiration, white cotton block-printed with fish, barnyard, Indian, Greek Key, banana, and other motifs.

Marjorie Montgomery Lutz, reviver of the pinafore, says that she would rather work with cottons than anything else because she finds it easy to

National Cotton Week This Year May 22-27

National Cotton Week this year will be observed during the period May 22 to 27, according to the Cotton Textile Institute and National Cotton Council, sponsors of the event. The date was decided upon in consultation with representative chain and department stores and dry goods wholesalers. The event comes a week later than usual and is scheduled to occur during the period when retail presentations of summer cotton merchandise are at their height.

Unlike previous observances, which were based on bountiful supplies of all types of cotton products, this year's celebration will be restricted almost wholly to emphasizing the role of cotton in peace and war and to bringing to the attention of consumers the needs after the cessation of hostilities. The event will also give retailers an opportunity to explain the lack of assortment in many kinds of cotton goods and to teach consumers to conserve what they have.

The slogan for the event will be "First in War, First in Peace" and around this slogan will be built many retail displays showing military cotton war items and their future civilian applications once governmental restrictions are lifted. There will be much emphasis on the new plastic finishes developed for army raincoat fabrics and on the many water-repellent flame-proof, weather resistant finishes developed for use by troops serving on battlefields from the Arctic to the jungles of the southwest Pacific. Some of the war cottons have already entered consumer trade, among them underwear, handkerchiefs and dresses made of balloon cloth, numerous new work-clothing items and water-repellent cotton (will coats and sports wear.

Red, white and blue posters, emphasizing the patriotic theme of the event will be distributed to retailers across the country. Also distributed will be much material on the conservation of cotton clothing and home furnishings as well as suggestions for practical retail tie-up attuned to present day conditions.
